This year's programme theme is 'Catalyst'.

Architecture and design can be catalysts for beneficial change because they can enable, accelerate, or inspire interaction across our entire built environment, to the benefit of both individuals and institutions.

'Catalyst' will explore the potential for people to find opportunities for fulfilment, personally and collectively, through multiple and varied interactions with community, ideas, experiences, and place.

The Special Prizes

Alongside the main WAF award categories are a host of special prizes awarded to projects that demonstrate excellence in a particular area. These prizes are awarded to projects submitted into the main WAF awards...

The Water Prize supported by GROHE

Finalists of the Water Prize demonstrated a new challenge or opportunity related to design within the built environment and water. This year's winner will present live on the Festival Hall Stage at WAF and receive £10,000 from GROHE to enhance their project. Previous winners have included water filtration, generation and cooling systems in Peru, Brazil and Greece.

"GROHE is honored to support and inspire global design excellence, thought leadership and business networking at WAF. The GROHE Water Research Prize highlights and celebrates water-conscious design. Concurrently, our GROHE SPA regional launch unveils curated collections of the highest craftsmanship and materials; personalizable for a tailored, all-round luxury bath experience."

Satoshi Konagai, Leader, LIXIL Water Technology APAC

The Visualisation Prize supported by Lumion

The fourth-annual Visualisation Prize, sponsored by Lumion rendering software, invites entrants to explore the limitless potential of visualisation, find creative flow and inspire others with their most captivating renders.

The Futureglass Prize supported by Aestech

This prize will award the project that best demonstrates new ways in which glass and glass technology has been deployed.

Best use of Natural Light supported by VELUX

This prize is to award completed building projects that showcase a unique use of a daylighting. Special emphasis will be put on projects that consider the impact on human well-being.

Royal Fine Art Commission Trust International Building Beauty Prize supported by Ballymore

This award will be made to a building which 'raises the spirits.' Finalists were chosen from projects from within the completed building categories. The winner of Royal Fine Art Commission Trust UK Building Beauty Awards, which takes place later in the year, will also be added to the overall shortlist.

Best use of Colour

The Best Use of Colour Prize celebrates the creative use of colour in architecture, both inside and out.

Small Project of the Year

Any completed buildings project can be entered, the only criteria is that it is judged to be small for type!

World Festival of Interiors Inside

Inside World Festival of Interiors is the sister festival of WAF, taking place at the same time and location. Inside is a feast of creativity, inspiration and knowledge for the interiors industry. It is the only design awards where designers pitch their work to a panel of expert judges and their peers – all live at the festival in Singapore.

schedule is subject to change and up-to-date listings will be posted on the event app available to download nearer the time
